IFRA STATUS

Based on the identity and representative composition of the material, Phenyl Ethyl Isovalerate is not known to be subject to an individual prohibition, restriction or specified maximum-use concentration under the IFRA 51st Amendment.

The IFRA Standards Library is the authoritative source for determining whether a fragrance ingredient is covered by a specific IFRA Standard.

No substance-specific IFRA maximum-use level is therefore assigned in this certificate.

This does not mean that the material may be used without limitation in every finished product.

Safe use depends upon:

- The intended consumer product
- The applicable IFRA product category
- The concentration used in the fragrance compound
- The complete fragrance formulation
- Batch purity and secondary constituents
- The toxicological assessment of the finished product
- Applicable cosmetic and consumer-product legislation
